FOR WEDNESDAY

With the passing of Labor Day the eyes of the commercial world are turned to meet the business propositions of another year. Our policy is that of evolution, and every succeeding year finds us better prepared for business than the last year preceding. By larger preparation and by never relaxing our efforts, we keep our business constantly on the increase from year to year. We intend that the year now commencing shall discount all those that have preceded in our business history. We have often made this determination before, and have never been disappointed of its realization yet. With this purpose in mind, we start the business year and submit the following bargain budget for our ever popular Wednesday Sale. Each item here tells its own story.

Big enterprises move slowly. Plans for the gigantic Filene structure soon to be erected on this site were intended to be completed long before this; but it is quite natural that in such a mammoth enterprise some hitches should occur. Some few corrections in the plans have to be made, and in spite of the fact that our lease at 14-16 Summer Street expired last Thursday, the owners and builders have courteously permitted us to remain here from week to week, subject at any time to a 4 or 5 day notice to vacate.

The time allowance is very uncertain—but even a few days will help in clearing our racks, and for the men of Boston it intensifies the saving opportunity a hundred fold—for on top of the gigantic reductions already made, we have once again slashed every light and medium weight suit and overcoat in the house, all GEORGES beautiful model clothes, ranging originally up to $40 down to three prices, $6.00, $9.00 and $12.00.

Included are two and three-piece Sack Suits, in conservative three-button styles, in two-button models for the smart dresser, and in the new English soft role for those who want extreme styles. Also Raincoats, Cravettes, Overcoats, etc. Sizes begin in suits for slim young men of 15 to 21 years, and go up for men of absolutely every proportion to extra sizes of 52-inch chest.

All Fall, Winter & Fur-Lined Overcoats 33 1/3 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR

We are selling more winter weight and fur lined Overcoats and Walking, Prince Albert, Dress and Tuxedo Suits, right now, than most Boston stores sell right in the heart of the winter season. Why? Because Boston men know what a rare investment opportunity they mean at present prices. A GEORGES garment can be called into service even a third season, and still be abreast of the current style.

All $4, $5, $6 and $7 Flannel $2.35 Trousers in a Final Clean-Up at

Grays, whites and creams, plain and striped

We are not a Specialty Raincoat Store, but our Raincoat stock is the largest in Boston, embracing the best at the lowest price possible in both domestic and imported English Mandelbergs.

For the convenience of our patrons, the store will remain open evenings until 9 o'clock. Saturdays till 10:30.

Hack Showed "Yellow Streak" In Mat Bout Against Gotch

Frank Gotch of Hamoult, Iowa, is still champion wrestler of the world, having defeated George Hackenschmidt, the "Russian Lion," in two straight falls.

While Gotch won easily and Hackenschmidt proved a great opponent, the match, which took place yesterday afternoon at the American League Baseball grounds in Chicago, was in many ways a remarkable one.

The bout was witnessed by a crowd estimated at 10,000 people, many of whom came to see the match in order to get good positions in line for admission.

In spite of the great crowd there was no serious danger and the spectators, though expecting a much more exciting contest, appeared satisfied. Gotch's superiority was apparent almost from the beginning.

The bout was vividly described for readers of the AMERICAN by William Muldoon, the greatest living authority on wrestling and former champion wrestler of the world.

Former Champion Wrestler of the World.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—The crowd that saw Champion Wrestler Frank Gotch defeat George Hackenschmidt in two straight falls at Comiskey Park, yesterday, was the largest ever brought together for a wrestling match in America.

The management was good so far as handling the crowd in good order was concerned, but the accommodations for seeing the contest were very bad owing to the fact that the admission was too far away from the platform.

The first bout was an exhibition of skill and strength between the two champions. The second preliminary started with a wrestling match between two men of the same weight and class.

Gotch seemed nervous. He was a little shaky at first, but he soon got his bearings and his confidence.

Mrs. Wilcox on "Mental Healing"

We Print Her Views—But Do Not Endorse All of Them

In the last column on this page you will find our brilliant contributor and genius, Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox. Her article criticizes the doctors of the regular scientific school, praises the so-called "mental healing," and expresses the opinion that within a hundred years doctors will do all their healing with the power of thought.

Mrs. Wilcox's article is interesting, but we are unwilling to print it without a few qualifying comments.

The great poetess is right when she criticizes the doctor who, unable to deal with the neurotic young girl, makes of her a morphine fiend, to let himself out of his difficulties, takes money from the girl's father, and in return inflicts the most dreadful curse upon her.

Such a physician should be put in jail and kept there.

It is true to say that the so-called mind healing, faith healing, Christian Science and other cures of the same kind produce admirable effects in diseases which have their seat in the brain.

The brain can cure diseases of the brain—such as are not physical diseases, that is to say, diseases affecting the tissues or physical substances.

Mind cures, faith cures, Christian Science by bringing into play certain forces of the mind can combat, and sometimes cure, illness caused by a weakened, disorganized mental and nervous condition.

It is in substance true, although a little harsh to say that the modern mental healers "can cure any disease that you haven't got"; that is to say, that they can cure a disease which is entirely mental and largely imaginary.

It is untrue and dangerous to say that any mental healing can take the place of a skillful surgeon.

Thousands of children are made miserable throughout life because they are not freed from adenoid growth—abnormal developments in the back of the throat which prevent proper breathing.

Only the surgeon's knife can remove and cure adenoids. No faith healer, mental healer, Christian Scientist or anybody but a competent surgeon can do that, or ever has done it. Sometimes adenoids may be partially absorbed, extraordinary physical vigor may fight successfully against them. And the placid, happy mental state of the individual who believes in faith healing may help along a good physical condition.

But you need a surgeon to attend to adenoid growths. You need a dentist to attend to your teeth. You need antiseptic treatment, or better still, aseptic treatment, in all surgical operations.

You need a skillful doctor "of the old school" in childbirth, and if you have not got one you risk the life of the mother and child—and you ought to be put in jail for doing that. Some faith healers get around the childbirth problem by saying that it is not necessary to have any childbirth, and that if we were sufficiently scientific material births could be eliminated. But that is not very satisfactory when the child arrives.

The surgeon's knife does slip sometimes. If the surgeon is incompetent he should be driven out of his profession. The plumber's tools slip sometimes, and the job is bungled. Such a plumber should be driven out of his profession.

Many surgeons and many plumbers lack skill. But that does not justify the silly notion that you can install plumbing in a house with faith or Christian Science, or that, with those agencies, you can remove a verminous appendix.

Nobody should interfere with a faith healer or mental healer because that individual takes a dollar or ten thousand dollars from the adult who wishes to employ him.

So far as adults are concerned there is no harm in allowing faith healers to treat their non-contagious diseases from stone-brains to lockjaw.

If the adult is willing to die of a non-contagious disease in order to demonstrate a theory, let him. Such an adult can be spared.

But faith healers and others must not be permitted to deal with contagious diseases or pretend to cure them—that is dangerous to the public at large.

The body is a building like any big building in a city. Your body has a framework, which is the skeleton. It has plumbing made up of the veins, arteries and alimentary machinery. It has electric wiring, which is the system of nerves. It has a great engine, which is the heart, and it has a magnificent ventilating apparatus, which is the lungs.

The body requires the ministrations in each department of those that have made a specialty of its various parts—just as a great building requires its architect, builder, plumber, engineer and janitor. The janitor is the family physician who calls in the specialist and tells him what is wrong.

Our bones, blood vessels and nerves need the scientific osteopath, who prevents pressure of the bones upon nerves or blood vessels, stimulates functional activity and gives to the different parts of the body the proper supply of blood and nervous energy.

The lungs require their specialist in case of emergency, and the various other ills that flesh is heir to, the dreadful cancerous growths and the contagious diseases require the treatment of learned, earnest scientific men.

Real diseases cannot be effectively combated with the treatment of the amiable faith healing apothecary who meets the situation with a declaration that there is no disease, and smiles amiably when the patient dies.

The doctor who attributes his own shortcomings to the patient's "heart failure" or "inability to rally after an operation" may be a dangerous quack. But the good physicians know that, and they say so.

Such a surgeon who attributes the patient's death to the patient's heart is no worse than the faith healer who attributes the patient's death to the fact that he lacked the right brand of faith.

It is not a fact that one hundred years from now all doctors will cure with thought.

One hundred years from now and one million years from now matter will sit upon matter, and the agency used will be force directed by thought.

Thought is the directing agency.

There are three things in the world—Thought, which rules and directs—Force, which carries out the orders and conceptions of thought—and Matter, which thought rallies itself and its visions.

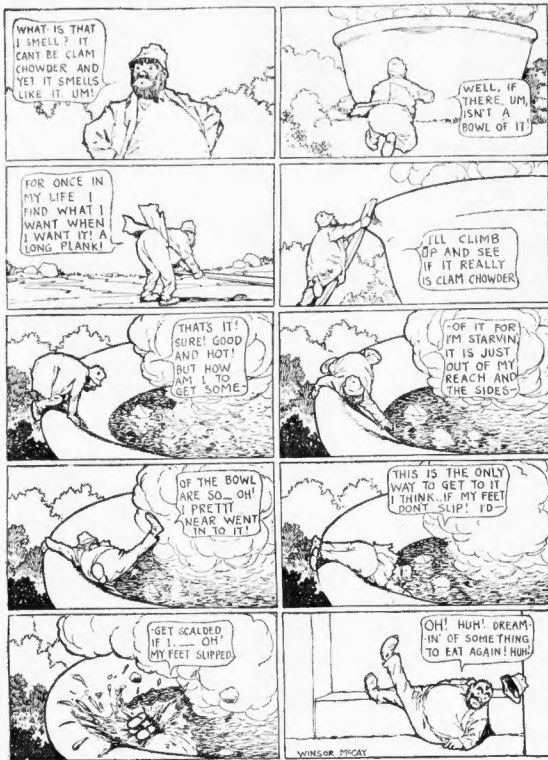

A hundred years from now and a million years from now the surgeon's knife will remove the tumor, if it still exists, just as the plow will cut through the soil and the hammer will carve the stone.

But perhaps in a few hundred years, and certainly in a million years, increased intelligence among men, greater self-control, absolute sobriety, wise living, scientific knowledge even among children will make disease almost unknown, and limit the activities of physicians almost entirely to prophylaxis, which is prevention.

But even in a million years, and in ten million years, if the human race lasts as long as that, which it probably will, science, created by the mind, directing force and acting upon matter will rule the world.

When you find a faith healer who can build a hen house with faith and without tools, or move a pebble half an ounce in weight without touching it, when you are willing to trust your plumbing to a faith plumber who says he can cure the leak by thinking about it, then trust your body and your internal plumbing to the medical plumber who cures with thought.

With the exceptions above noted we admire the article of our genius, Mrs. Wilcox, and cheerfully print it, believing that all sides could have a hearing.

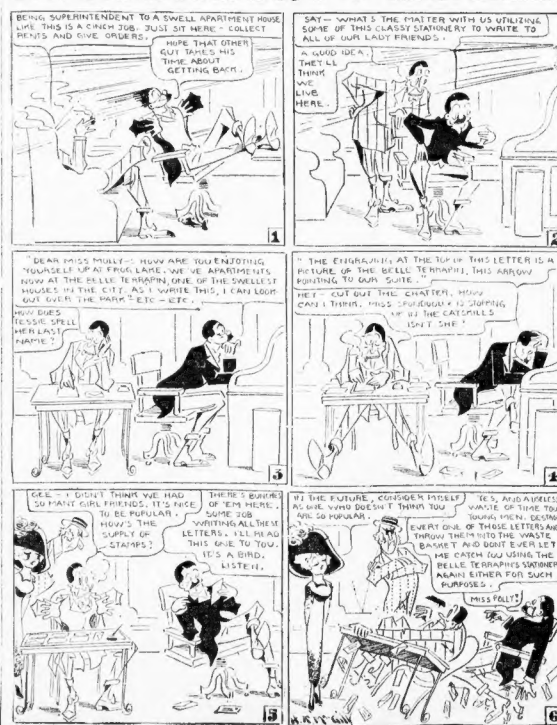

A new series of beautiful pictures by Winsor McCay, the author of Little Nemo, is the latest feature of the colored section of the Sunday AMERICAN.

Mental Healing
and the Medical Profession

In One Hundred Years
Thought Will Be the Knowledge and Power
Used by All Reputable
Physicians to Cure and Heal Humanity

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

TWO people have been arrested by our great and wise officials of New York and fined for telling supposed patients (who proved to be spies for the medical fraternity) how to be well and live well through right thinking, breathing and exercising. Because the mental practitioners took a fee for their information they were fined.

No possible injury can come to any human being from learning how to breathe, exercise and think.

A few years ago a young woman of great beauty and charm and sweetness of character was afflicted with a neuritic trouble. She began to consult physicians of the "regular school"—these physicians who are authorized by our laws to take charge of the health of the nation.

Made a Morphine Victim by the Regular School, but Cured by Thought

She grew worse and worse. New complications arose. New physicians were called in. Finally the young woman was sent to a sanitarium. There she remained almost a year, and growing worse, was sent to another, where different treatment was given.

After four years she returned from a third sanitarium "a hopeless invalid," and one of the best authorized physicians informed the father of the young woman that she could never be well, and that her only relief from her pain must come through morphine, which they had taught her to use regularly.

The young woman was unable to be seen by any of her friends, but through some divine interpretation of Providence, she was one day visited by a metaphysical teacher and healer.

In less than a month the young woman was able to visit her mother, and in less than two months she had entirely given up her morphine habit and was enjoying on a new lease of life and youth and health, which still lasts.

The writer is a close personal friend of this young woman and KNOWS all the facts in the case.

Knife Slipped and Killed Child, but Physician Was Not Arrested

An only child, a lovely girl of ten, was quoted upon in Hartford, Ct., by a "high class" physician for adenoids. The knife "slipped" and the child bled to death! The physician was not arrested! He belonged to the "regular school!"

Now the question must arise to any sane and reasonable mind, why the physicians who taught this girl to use the deadly morphine, and who calmly informed her father that she must always use it, in order to escape pain, should be immune from punishment and fine, while the mental healers who taught proper mental and physical methods of life should be made criminals in the eyes of the law.

There are unparelleled crimes committed every day against humanity by our "regular" physicians of the old school.

There are countless operations performed which are unnecessary and which cost money, time and vitality, and leave the victims suffering for years, or cause their death. Not more than one operation in one hundred is probably an imperative necessity.

Simple, sensible methods of life, practiced in for months, together with an understanding of the laws of mind and the power of thought, would avert two-thirds of the malady from which people suffer, and would cure the remaining third.

Operations are performed every day by reputable doctors by which women are rendered barren for life who might become robust and strong, and bring healthy children into the world, if common-sense methods were employed.

Yet these physicians are never arrested, never fined, and when a patient dies under the knife it is never acknowledged that the operation was the cause, but it is always said that the patient had not sufficient vitality to rally, or that "unexpected complications arose," or that it was "heart failure." Manslaughter frequently hides under that expression of "heart failure."

Time to End the Ignorant Fetish Worship to Medical Fraternity

Surely it is time in this enlightened age that we cease to give ignorant fetish worship to allow our dear ones to go under the knife, or to be taught the morphine habit, at the word of one of the "regular school," and that we permit our laws to be framed in a manner which protects scientific murder and punishes common-sense, wholesome methods of treatment.

It is not the purpose of this article to derv all the regular practitioners, nor to land all the charlatans and cranks who call themselves metaphysical healers.

There is still a good in the world for doctors of the "old school," though that school is as certainly passing as the stage coach has passed and given place to the motor and steam cars.

And there is need for supervision over those who claim to be healers. But at the present time our laws seem to be framed for protecting any kind of a bungler and charlatan who has a diploma from the "regular school," no matter what the enormities of his practices. And they are formed to prosecute any progressive and clearing-up soul who interferes with their business by showing people how to get well without the aid of drugs and knives.

Nevertheless, mental and nature healers will increase; the old school practitioners will fall more and more into the background, and only those physicians who graft New Thought and metaphysical methods upon the dying old tree of medicine will be able to keep abreast with the times.

In one hundred years, thought will be the acknowledged power used by all reputable physicians to cure and heal humanity.
